

RE: Tish Prouse for Ward 6 City Councillor

To whom it may concern,

As a local business owner in Edmonton, I see the value of good Civic planning, as well as the danger of planning gone wrong. Over the years, as a home builder focused on Infill Development, I've seen constant changes to Development Bylaws, development guidelines that fail to cohesively mesh with the City's density mandates, and rationale regarding bylaw enforcement prioritization that in some cases escapes me. I think it is incredibly important to have someone in Council who understands the priorities of developers, but also has a cohesive vision for the City -and also someone who is not afraid of being an advocate for density through thoughtful, and responsible development.

In my many discussions with Tish Prouse, I've seen that advocacy, and that vision. He shares a respect for the history of Edmonton, but also wants to see those inner city neighborhoods that have decayed from being left idle, and undeveloped for years become developer friendly zones where families would WANT to live. We share a common belief in providing responsible builders with the opportunity and ability to grow, while ensuring proper bylaw enforcement for those who need it. He shares my vision in wanting to see great builders become successful businesses, and I believe that he has the ability to help builders, and businesses like myself grow, and prosper along with the City of Edmonton.

Sincerely,
