To whom it may concern,

I have been in business in Edmonton for over twenty years. I serve the greater Edmonton region by solidifying the life of older homes and buildings with innovative and quality foundation work. City council does not understand what makes a good community, nor do they spend my tax dollars with care. Road renewal affects my ability to operate, and to exist, but never have I, or my colleagues, been approached or consulted about any of the projects around my business.

Tish is the first candidate for city council to truly show an interest in supporting small business needs in the context of our city's growth strategy. He is very community-oriented, and has worked hard to bring the residents and businesses in our area together as one solid community. He is informed and intelligent, and he listens to what people are really saying. This is real leadership, and responsibility, and accountability. I fully support Tish's bid at council, and encourage my fellow business owners in Edmonton to support him as well.

Respectfully,

Glenn Suprovich
